Letter from the Executive Director

From 50 to 250

It is hard to believe we've already closed the chapter on The Durham Museum's 50th anniversary. It went by so fast! We spent 2025 celebrating the best parts of our work. From traveling and internally developed exhibitions to engaging public events to inspiring education programs that shed new light on our preservation work, the museum team loved immersing our visitors in our collective past. As we turn to 2026, we are excited to recognize another important milestone — our nation's Semiquincentennial.

This year, our country celebrates its 250th anniversary. We often say at the museum that the history of our region mirrors the national narrative, and our 2026 season is a perfect reflection of just that. We've curated an exhibit lineup that blends rich American history along with iconic stories and traditions. It will be a year you won't want to miss.

The year begins with a powerful exploration of resilience in The Negro Motorist Green Book. The Durham Museum will serve as the final public stop for this Smithsonian exhibition. It's a moving look at the reality of travel for many during the Jim Crow era and a testament to the community spirit that helped travelers find their way, even here in our community.

Of course, we are also making plenty of room to play! Our friends at LOLUG (Lincoln/Omaha LEGO® User Group) are helping to bring Get Building! Bricks at The Durham to life this spring. LOLUG has been hard at work designing and constructing Nebraska-inspired models that will serve as inspiration for our visitors' own creative engineering. All ages are sure to enjoy this nod to America's favorite "playtime."

This summer, the galleries will transform with a bit of Disney magic. Heroes & Villains: The Art of the Disney Costume invites you to see the incredible craftsmanship behind the characters we know and love ... or maybe don't love. From the regal to the wicked, we can't wait for you to "Be Our Guest" and see these works of art up close.

To honor the Semiquincentennial, the museum is once again showcasing our own incredible archive. The Signers will highlight the renowned Byron Reed Collection, featuring documents containing the authentic signatures of those who signed the Declaration of Independence. This exhibition will serve as a wonderful reminder that historic documents aren't just found in Washington D.C.

Finally, we'll wrap up the year with the return of a true fan favorite, White Christmas - The Exhibition. Even if you visited this exhibit in 2023, you'll want to come back for an updated experience and additional artifacts!

As you can see, there is a lot to experience in the year ahead at Omaha's home to history. We hope you will plan to join us in recognizing 250 years of America — and the start of the museum's next 50 years.

Warmly,

Christi Janssen
Executive Director

THE NEGRO MOTORIST GREEN BOOK

Exhibition on display February 7 – May 3

Stories of bravery, innovation and creative self-determination

The Negro Motorist Green Book
February 7 - May 3

The Negro Motorist Green Book offers an immersive look at the reality of travel for African Americans in mid-century America, and how the annual guide served as an indispensable resource for the nation's rising African American middle class. The exhibition includes historic footage, images and firsthand accounts to convey not only the apprehension felt by African American travelers, but also the resilience, innovation and elegance of people fighting to live a full American existence. It will bring focus to a vibrant parallel world of African American businesses, the rise of the Black leisure class in the United States and the important role The Green Book played in facilitating the second wave of the Great Migration.

(Right) The Negro Motorist Green Book cover, 1947. Courtesy Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture, Jean Blackwell Hutson Research and Reference Division, New York Public Library.

The Green Book was published and distributed nationwide from 1936 until 1967, providing African American travelers with information on restaurants, gas stations, department stores and other businesses that welcomed Black travelers. In an era of Jim Crow laws and "sundown towns" The Green Book offered critical, life-saving information and sanctuary.

The Negro Motorist Green Book was created by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service in collaboration with Candacy Taylor, and made possible through the generous support of Exxon Mobil Corp.

Spring Exhibits

The Sopranos: Nineteenth Century A-Listers
Now - June 7

Our latest showcase from the Byron Reed Collection highlights rare items from the world of 19th-century entertainment, when a theater boom brought live performers, especially opera singers, into the spotlight. Reed's manuscript collection includes portraits and programs from the likes of renowned vocalists Henriette Sontag and Jenny "The Swedish Nightingale" Lind, who captivated audiences across Europe and won the hearts of American listeners, as well. Visitors can also learn about notable performer Mary Münchhoff, who called Omaha home.

This exhibition was curated by Durham Museum intern Mina Bussa, University of Nebraska at Omaha graduate.

Creighton Stadium
LOCAL FOCUS
Now - February 15

Did you know that before it was a "basketball" school, Creighton University once played football? Explore a fascinating part of Creighton's history and the short-lived legacy of a ragtag group of boys in this nine-image Photo Archive display.

Golden Spike Days
LOCAL FOCUS
February 21 - August 16

Omaha became the center of the entertainment world in 1939 during of one of the city's biggest spectacles — Golden Spike Days, the four-day celebration for the world premiere of Cecil B. DeMille's film Union Pacific. From parades to three Omaha theaters simultaneously screening the film and a grand costume ball finale, residents stepped back in time with false fronts on businesses and outfits to resemble life in 1869. The Golden Spike Days Photo Archive display showcases the many happenings during this special occasion.

This exhibition was curated by Durham Museum intern Sophie Krueger, University of Nebraska at Omaha graduate.

Get Building! Bricks at The Durham
February 7 - May 3

The Durham Museum is partnering with Lincoln/Omaha LEGO® Users Group (LOLUG) to create a fun and new interactive experience for builders of all ages. Featuring extraordinary models of Omaha Union Station, Carhenge, Nebraska State Capitol, a Nebraska landmark map and other creations developed by the LOLUG team, plus hands-on construction areas where visitors can free-build their own creations, Get Building! emphasizes creativity and collaboration.

A Look Ahead

The Signers
Exhibit opens August 1

In celebration of the 250th anniversary of the United States, The Durham Museum presents The Signers exhibition. This inspiring display explores the stories of the 56 men who boldly signed the Declaration of Independence — farmers, lawyers, merchants and musicians — united in their pursuit of liberty. Featuring original signatures from the museum's Byron Reed Collection, the exhibition is enhanced by historic documents and a striking reproduction of John Trumbull's iconic painting "The Declaration of Independence."

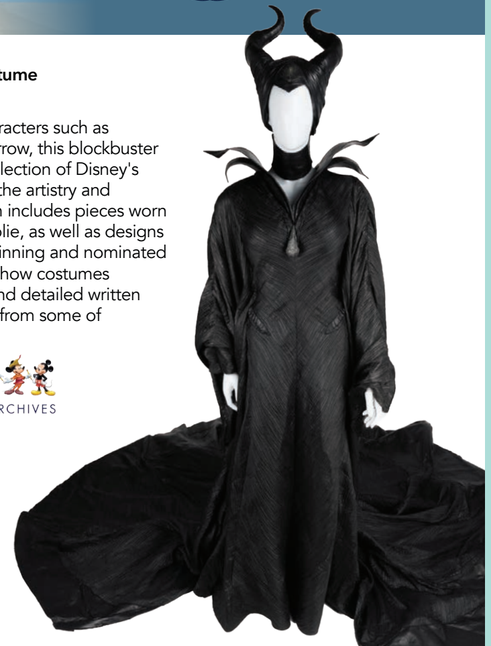

Heroes & Villains: The Art of the Disney Costume
Exhibit opens May 30

Featuring 70 costumes of some beloved characters such as Cinderella, Maleficent and Captain Jack Sparrow, this blockbuster showcase highlights the innovative ways a selection of Disney's iconic characters are brought to life through the artistry and imagination of their costumes. The exhibition includes pieces worn by Bette Davis, Glenn Close and Angelina Jolie, as well as designs from Academy® Award and Emmy® Award winning and nominated productions. Guests will also get insight into how costumes evolve from concept to reality, with quotes and detailed written accounts featured throughout the exhibition from some of Hollywood's preeminent designers.

Heroes & Villains: The Art of the Disney Costume is curated by the Walt Disney Archives.

REGISTER Institute for Holocaust Education Lecture featuring Steve Goldberg
Wednesday, March 25, 6:30-7:30PM
Free for members; regular museum admission applies.
Advance registration is required.

The Durham Museum is honored to partner with the Institute for Holocaust Education as a part of its annual Week of Understanding, a week of programming where over 6,000 people will hear moving testimonies of survivors of the Holocaust as told by second and third-generation Holocaust survivors.

This year's speaker is Steve Goldberg, who will share the compelling story of his friend, Abe Piasek, a Holocaust survivor. Abe was 13 years old when he was sent to Nazi labor camps, later liberated from a cattle car in 1945. He lost his entire family, but never his spirit of perseverance. Before his passing in 2020, Abe asked Steve to "keep telling his story," and tell he has, sharing Abe's life of tremendous courage in the face of tragedy to over 10,000 people.

Two Georges

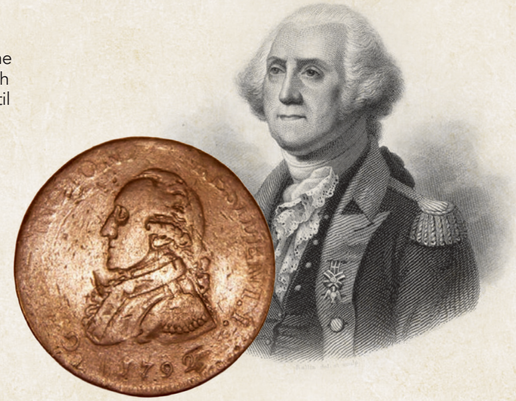

The Durham Museum is home to the Byron Reed Rare Document, Coin and Book Collection featuring many pieces related to America's colonial and revolutionary history. Two hundred and fifty years ago, in the midst of the Revolutionary War, the American Colonies declared independence from the British Crown. On each side of the conflict stood a figurehead named George whose portraits have appeared on currency.

1773 British-Virginia Halfpenny featuring King George III
The Byron Reed Collection C1989.52.2731

Coins depicting the reigning English monarch have circulated since the ninth century. When King George III took the throne in 1760, his image was soon struck on currency throughout the colonies. In 1773, just as tensions with Britain were nearing a boil, the Virginia Colony issued its first official coin engraved by Richard Yeo. It featured a proud profile of the king alongside the Latin inscription "GEORGIVS III REX," meaning "George III, King."

The timing could not have been more dramatic. These coins began circulating in Virginia mere months before the Battles of Lexington and Concord in April 1775, the opening clash of the American Revolution. As war erupted against the very monarch stamped on them, Virginians quietly tucked the new coins away, hoarding them until peace finally came in 1783.

1792 Getz Pattern Coin featuring George Washington
The Byron Reed Collection C1989.52.2811

President George Washington signed the Coinage Act of 1792, establishing the United States Mint and requiring that American coins feature imagery symbolizing liberty. Yet one of the first proposed designs by engraver Peter Getz showed Washington's own profile. The idea faced backlash — Washington and others felt that placing a living leader on the nation's money looked far too much like the monarchy they had just fought against for independence.

The design was quickly set aside in favor of a familiar symbol from the Revolutionary era: Lady Liberty. Washington's profile was not featured on a U.S. circulating coin until 1932, in recognition of his 200th birthday.

Noon Year's Eve Celebration

Sock Skating Pond

Celebrating a Half Century of History

In 2025, The Durham Museum celebrated its 50th anniversary. We're humbled by this milestone and thank our members, supporters, volunteers and community partners for your continued support. Thanks to your generosity and involvement, a historic train station has grown into a vibrant hub of activity and community pride. With your ongoing energy and commitment, we can't wait to see what the next 50 years will bring.

Photo Preservation

Create History

Your generous support of The Durham Museum Annual Fund helps us preserve our National Historic Landmark building, digitize historic collections and serve students across the metro and beyond. With another busy spring upon us, we hope you'll consider contributing to support these vital pieces of the museum's mission. Simply return the enclosed envelope, add a gift to your membership renewal or use your phone to scan the QR code to give today!

Give Today!

On Track for the Next 50 Years

This year, the On Track Guild proudly championed the publication of Ak-Sar-Ben: Looking Back and Leading Onward, a coffee table book that brings 130 years of Aksarben history to life for new audiences while raising meaningful resources for the museum. You can support this effort by purchasing your own copy of this beautiful book at The Gilbert M. and Martha H. Hitchcock Museum Shop!

The Guild's impact continued with the "Coming Home for the Holidays" Luncheon and Market. This annual tradition was another sold-out success that raised more than $125,000 for educational programming and museum operations.

Get Involved with the On Track Guild

The Durham Museum's On Track Guild membership drive is underway, and we would love to welcome you! Join this dedicated volunteer organization that strengthens the museum through service, fundraising and community awareness. FLAPPERS & FIZZ

A Fan-Favorite Returns

Saturday, February 28, 7-10pm

$40 members, $50 non-members
$60 at the door

Don your glad rags and get ready to drink some giggle water. You're invited to a night of flappers, drinks and dancing! Each ticket holder receives entry to the event, light hors d'oeuvres (while supplies last) and one drink ticket. Head to the dance floor to enjoy the fancy footwork of the Omaha Jitterbugs. Want to get in on the action? Kick up your heels and learn to dance the Charleston. If you're lucky, you may even find your way to the speakeasies hidden throughout the museum!

This night is going to be the bee's knees with reserved VIP tables — and we're still cooking up a few surprises! Check the website for the latest scuttlebutt and event details. Must be 21 or older to attend.

Past Flappers and Fizz events have sold out so be sure to reserve your tickets soon. Tickets are available on our website at DurhamMuseum.org/fizz or by calling 402-444-5071.
